District saw him electioneering at a safe distance from the po ils on election day. Last night, moreover, he spent a few minutes with his friends in the Divver club-rooms, in Madison street.

Evidently Divver is adhering to the determination he formed on his return from California last Spring, to say nothing and wait till the storm blows over. He has kept out of the way of reporters by abandoning altogether his work on the police bench, and he kept himself so secluded until election day that only a few of his heelers have seen him since his adventure in Tekulsky's saloon.

The belief is general in the Second Assembly District that Divver will never the distance of the lab rers brought down by Delegate Brown.

sembly District that Divver will never again preside in a police court. There is no longer any talk of his resignation, but his friends say he will remain in se-clusion until he is legislated out of office but his friends say he will remain in seculusion until he is legislated out of office with the other police justices. Then, they say, he can go out in cempany, and his retirement will not be so humiliating as if he resigned under fire.

His salary will go on for a few months' more anyhow, with the possibility that it may be continued onser in case the question of the constitutionality of removing police justices by legislative action is brought into the courts.

There is a probability, however, that Diver may not be allowed to wait until the other police justices are removed. By his entire abandonment of the bench during the last five weeks, he has, in the opinion of good lawyers, made himself liable to removal by the Court of Common Pleas under the section of the Consolidation act which provides that a police justice may be removed "for habitual neglect of duty, carelessness or inefficiency in the discharge of the duties of a police justice, or for wilful disobedisence to any of the provisions under this title."

ence to any of the provisions under this title."

Divver might be removed on the graver charges of his connection with treen-goods men, his instigation of election frauds, &c. but it seems that in the onlinion of the lawyers, he could most easily be removed from the bench under the section quoted above.

His habitual neglect of duty could be proved by the police court records. In the last 3il days he has appeared on the bench only 56 times, while for more than five weeks he has not been in a police court at all. He was absent from the bench from Jan. I last till some time in April, and since his return from California he has gone to court rarely.

All the time he has drawn $155 a week. He has not the excuse of illness to offer, as he is known to be in robust health. Any citizen may petition the Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas to place Divver on trial for neglect of duty, and if found guilty he could be removed by the court.

In her cell Mrs. Page stated that her husband was addicted to the use of morphine and administered morphine pills to Harry Williams twenty manutes before the latter filed.

She said that Deputy Cor ner Donline at the time of issuing the death certificate, asked whether any one had given Williams morphine. Her husband, she said, answered in the negative.

Just before they were taken to court, she declared that she made this charge out of revenge upon Page, for having caused her arrest. Mrs. Page repeated this tatement to distince fluring two one-ant-a-half grain morphine pills on his drage sperson.
